

Has the thermal cyclability of the solar energy collection been explored outside of the theoretical? Or are there any plans to be brought forth? I found this new idea for solar energy collection very intriguing.